SOMETHING TO HIS CREDIT

Musolfi may not measure up satisfactorily to the accepted standards of a twentieth century ruler; in fact, some of his methods are pretty rough. But it will be noted that he has undertaken to make his countrymen pay their war debt. For that much will he be forgiven, his policy on the part of the long-suffering British taxpayer. The latter will have to be excused if he wishes that some other continental delinquents who boast their democratic forms of government would fall under the rule of like-minded dictators.

A CASE WORTH WATCHING

It is not permissible that newspapers or their readers should anticipate the outcome of the prosecution of certain fruit-dealers that has been started in the courts in Vancouver, or comment on the proceedings or the evidence. But there is no law on the statute books nor in the code of fair practice which forbids a newspaper suggesting to its readers that they follow the case. The reports come over the wire. What has occurred already indicates that readers in this fruit-buying province may find the evidence to be interesting reading.

The prosecuting counsel in his opening address undertook to show that certain dealers made a profit of $520 on a car of fruit before the fruit was placed on the retail market. He said the grower of the fruit got only $477 for it. This court may find that the dealers were entitled to every cent of that profit, that they were not. For that much will he be forgiven, his policy on the part of the long-suffering British taxpayer. The latter will have to be excused if he wishes that some other continental delinquents who boast their democratic forms of government would fall under the rule of like-minded dictators.

THE COMPETITOR SHOWS THE WAY

In 1924 Denmark exported 124,800 tons of butter, 198,000 tons of bacon and 400,000,000 eggs. Every second egg that year was a Danish egg. Every second pound of butter was a Danish pound. Every second pound of bacon was a Danish pound. Every second egg that year was a Danish egg. Every second pound of butter was a Danish pound. Every second pound of bacon was a Danish pound.

The Danes are not all farmers. Only one in three of them is engaged in that occupation. The farm population masters only about a million pounds of the industrial products of the country. The population feeds the other two-thirds and feeds the British market with foodstuffs of the quality that secures perfect standing and commands the best prices.

Denmark in 1924 sold Great Britain 50,000,000 pounds worth of goods. Britain sold Denmark in the same year 13,500,000 pounds worth. The balance of trade was upwards of 37,000,000 pounds in favor of the Danes. The inference is that if Britain could buy the Danish products of the same quality and at the same price as some of the goods to which it sells or could sell a larger proportion of its own products there would be an economic reason why Britishers should stop using Danish farm products.

Farm products do not make up the total of Danish exports to Britain. In 1924 the Danes exported goods to Britain to the value of $6,000,000. During the four year period, 1920-23, they sold factory goods in Britain to the value of the industrial products of the country. The balance of trade was upwards of 37,000,000 pounds in favor of the Danes. The inference is that if Britain could buy the Danish products of the same quality and at the same price as some of the goods to which it sells or could sell a larger proportion of its own products there would be an economic reason why Britishers should stop using Danish farm products.

In 1924 Great Britain imported bacon in the following amounts from the countries indicated:
From the United States 1,835,154 cwt.
From Canada 1,190,345 cwt.
From Ireland 555,046 cwt.
From other countries 267,138 cwt.

From Denmark 3,857,587 cwt.
From Denmark 3,978,472 cwt.
In the bacon trade of that year Denmark supplied the British market with a larger amount than all other countries combined. In that year Britishers bought an average of 10½ pounds of Danish bacon per head and paid for it at the highest price they paid for any bacon. For it ranks with the best. That is why they bought it in such quantities.

These figures serve to show in a striking way who it is that the Alberta farmer, dairyman and packer have to compete with when they go on to the British market with their bacon, butter and eggs. They show also how solidly entrenched the Danes are in that market, how successfully they cater to the requirements of their customers, and how well it pays them to do so.

To the same degree the figures show where Canada should look for hints as to what must be done to further popularize its products in Britain. The position the Danes have attained has not come to them by accident or favor. It has been won by hard work and hard thinking. The methods they have used in the production and marketing can be adapted and adopted here. And their success is the proof that it will pay to study their system and follow their lead.

It is better only sometimes to be right than at all times to be wrong. Before I resolve to do one thing or the other, I must gain my confidence in my own ability to keep my mind on the subject when they are made.—Abraham Lincoln.

OUR DAILY POEM

By EDGAR A. GUEST

NEIL INSTRUCTS ME IN SHOPPING
Says the missus to me: "I am sure I can't see
How you've ever succeeded in business at all.
You're the worstest easy mark, you will buy in the dark
And for any fool salesman you'll readily fall.
If you're needing a hat you just rush through the door
And take the first thing that they show in the store."

"You are always in haste, and you're horrible fast
And you'll listen to anything sales people tell.
You don't know how to buy, and you don't even try
You grab the first thing that the clerk tries to sell.
You rush into a place and you ask for a hat.
The clerk springs a derby. You shout: 'I'll take that!'"

"Now it's different with me, the first thing that I see
May be pretty and cheap, but it won't do at all.
I just stand and wait, while they pull the stock out,
And for any old thing I'm not ready to fall.
I will wait all the morning to purchase a dress.
For none can buy wisely who does it in less."

So I tried the wife's way and went shopping one day
And I thought the first hat which he showed me
I would do.
But I suddenly said: "Try them all on my head."
And it took a full hour all the stock to go through.
I insisted on seeing each size and each shade.
And then bought the very first hat he displayed.

FORTY YEARS AGO

From the Edmonton Bulletin, Thursday, Jan. 24, 1886.

D. M. McDougall sent to the lumber woods on Thursday men and teams to take out four thousand logs for D. R. Fraser.

A meeting of those interested in securing a cemetery site is requested for Wednesday evening next, in the school house.

The post office has been completely fitted with boxes and drawers, and presents a most metropolitan appearance.

Cold and still on Monday and Tuesday, stormy on Wednesday, calm, clear and pleasant on Thursday and Friday. The thermometer for the month has been the most severe experienced here for a number of years. On Monday the maximum was -21, and the minimum -41.

It may be some satisfaction to people here to know that we have not been suffering any more from the tyranny of kind winter than the people supposed to be much more favored regions. The record brought by last mail showed 35 below zero and a blizzard raging at Bismark, Dakota; trains blocked and wires down on the Union Pacific, and even Texas reported 4 below and a blizzard on.

A telegram says that C. A. Patterson, who was acting Sgt. Major of the 6th last spring and was stationed at Ft. Saskatchewan, an applicant for the position of brigade major of the 5th military district. Mr. Patterson wielded the pen as well as the sword, and was certainly not the least dangerous of his weapons.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

From the Edmonton Bulletin, Thursday, Jan. 24, 1896.

Editorial.—The short "debates" which have taken place in the senate and commons recently on the subject of the payment of outstanding territorial exhibition accounts reveal very peculiar views of responsibility as held by Premier Bowell and Finance Minister Foster. It seems that these gentlemen have some doubts about the responsibility of the Dominion Government for the accounts incurred in respect of the Territorial exhibition by Lieutenant Governor MacKintosh.

The accounts incurred in respect of the Territorial exhibition by Lieutenant Governor MacKintosh are paid, but as the North West did not ask for it, and more particularly did not manage it, it does not want to be made pay for other people's mistakes. Let those who made the mistakes pay. Advise—Garnet and Chénier, general merchant.

Opening announcement.—Wm. M. Adam and Co., grocers.

Telephone to S. Moran for coal.
H. Ferguson, vegetable and jeweler.
W. H. Rowley, beef, pork, mutton, turkeys, etc. cheap for cash.

Sleighs and strollers; Walters and Crockett.
For clock, stationery and fancy goods go to F. H. Andrews.

Edmonton Cartage Co., Jas. Dinner, proprietor.

Watches, clocks, jewelry and silverware: E. Rayner.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

From the Daily Edmonton Bulletin, Friday, February 2nd, 1906.

The persistent rumors which have been flying around for the last few days to the effect that the G.T.P. was to cross at Clover Bar, and which have caused a great stir in East End and the surrounding real estate, took definite form this morning when registration was made in the Land Registry office in Edmonton of the purchase of eight acres of land by the G.T.P. to the approach of the Clover Bar crossing. R. P. Ottewill is the seller of the land.

Harold W. Riley, deputy provincial secretary, left this morning for Claresholm.

TEN YEARS AGO

From the Morning Bulletin, Wednesday, February 2nd, 1916.

Norfolk, Va.—Given up for lost days ago, the British passenger liner Appam, lying in the West African trade, sailed like an apparition into Hampton Roads today flying the German naval ensign, and with her ship's company under guard of a German prize crew. She brought word of a mysterious German commerce raider, the Mowse, which menaced the seas and had been heard of by crews of seven British merchantmen and Admiralty transports captured by the Mowse before they seized the Appam and started her across the Atlantic for a United States port, with Leut. Claus Berge, of the German naval reserve, and twenty-two men in charge.

Gunning Again

DR. FRANK CRANE'S EDITORIAL

READING FOR THE COMMONS

A CHAUTAQUA set of books has just issued. This is the course designed for the common reader and appeals to the man who wishes to be well informed. If what Carlyle said is true, that "the true university of these days is a collection of books," then this constitutes an "excellent school." It is not designed for university students, but for those who are compelled to take a little time off each day to improve their minds.

It is intended for those who read with a definite end and purpose in mind.

One of the books is especially timely: It refers to man's life on earth and is by S. C. Schmecker.

The author of this book has been unusually successful in making science clear to people not scientifically trained. Considerable attention is it is devoted to the theory of evolution.

This theory has been generally accepted by all the schools and by the people who are most liberal.

It is quite natural and even commendable that the religious world should have combated an idea that seems so contrary to the teachings of the Bible which they love.

A little thought, however, reconciles those whose religion is deeper than books, and they easily spare their faith to a new ideal.

As the American Association for the Advancement of Science said: "No scientific generalization is more strongly supported by thoroughly tested evidence than that of organic evolution."

The best place probably to attack the idealists is through the Chautauqua which reaches the multitudes of the common people.

UNCOMMON SENSE

—By JOHN BLAKE—

SPEAKING

It must have been just after Thomas Carlyle had attended a dinner.

"There is nothing more in knowing than to have done."

The power to express one's self clearly and to the point is of great value to all men and women.

Few men have ever risen to no point of importance without it.

And those who attain such places have a far older opportunity of seeing their fellow men and thereby doing some good in the world than those who remain dead in private life.

But everybody who attends public meetings has to know how to speak.

There are many who know how to speak but do not know how to do it.

There are many who know how to do it but do not know how to do it.

There are many who know how to do it but do not know how to do it.

There are many who know how to do it but do not know how to do it.

There are many who know how to do it but do not know how to do it.

COMMENT

OVERDOING IT

Vancouver Province.—An Ontario paper recently denounced the new five cent coin as "one of the devil's devices." "People in moments of weakness," he declares, "are often led to place them on collection plates in churches, because the resemblance to the Lord's Supper is so striking. Fourteen of them were dropped in the collection plate at one service."

Canadian Curlers in Scotia; Detroit Solomon Goes to Judgment

THE REVERED PHOTOGRAPHER OF BRITAIN'S COURT has stirred the land with the recent announcement that America is to be thanked for the increasing number of beautiful Englishwomen. Photo of Lady Ashburton, who brought beauty but no money to her titled husband.

CANADIAN CURLERS now touring Scotland as the guests of the Royal Caledonian Club were given a civic welcome on their arrival at Greenock. Above photo shows the 36 visitors from the dominion being led to the waiting train by the pipers.

A MOVING PICTURE machine conspired in the court while Judge Brennan, of Detroit, announced that Irene Preybia, aged four, would go to an institution, decided for him that the child should be awarded to its foster parent, Mrs. Irene Gosen, rather than to its natural mother. The film showed that Mrs. Gosen (shown with the child) reacted more to the announcement than did the mother.

VIOLIN PRODIGY—Yehudi Menuhin (above), 8-year-old Frisco violinist, who recently made his debut in New York, where he was said to have rendered an adult program in masterful fashion. The lad, who is shown with his Strad, is a protégé of Mischa Elman, soon to visit Canada.

ABOVE: Willie Garner, youngest member of the riding family of Garners, who is proving a sensation at New Orleans, averaging three to four winners a day. On one day alone he was either one, two or three in six of the seven races.

GERMANY'S NEW FIELD MARSHAL, General Von Seckt, is shown above at a recent review. He is regarded as one of the few real military geniuses produced by the central powers during the world war.

SCORES OF MINOR LEAGUE MOGULS greeted Judge and Mrs. Keneaw Landis on their arrival at Los Angeles for the annual meeting and for the formal opening by the "Zar" of the new million-dollar park, built by William Wrigley, Jr., chewing gum magnate, and dedicated to all ball players who gave or risked their lives in the world war. THE YELLOW STUB

by Ernest Lynn

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Henry Hand, middle-aged business man, is expected home to help celebrate his son, Jimmy, 27th birthday. A theatre party is planned to include Jimmy, his father and mother, his sister, Janet, and her fiancé, Harry Collins.

While they are waiting, police telephone with word that Henry Hand is dead in a cheap hotel.

The body is found in a small room, a small with on the back of the head. The only clues are a woman's handkerchief and the stub of a yellow theatre ticket.

James Hand breaks her engagement with Collins. Detective Money, who is the "big" detective, is planning to go to Chicago to see the Paragon theatre in Chicago.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CLIPPING

"Not much to go on," said Money. "I have a hunch that the man who killed Henry Hand is still in the city. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"As for the ticket," observed Money as they were leaving the Pullman. "The first thing I am going to do is to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"I continued, more seriously, 'I have to let the detective know I'm here and what for. I have to let the detective know I'm here and what for. I have to let the detective know I'm here and what for.'

"Well, I'm not developing any leads, no matter how much I try. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"A chance in a million," said the ticket seller, "and you hit it!"

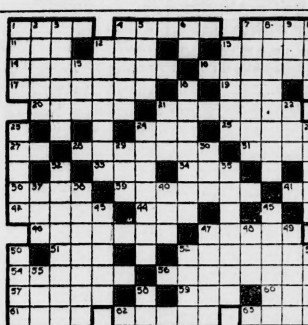

young man behind the barred window informed them before Money could ask his question.

"We're not looking for matinee tickets," replied the young man. "We're looking for a ticket that will give us a lift if they can be of any use. After that I'm damned if I know our next move, unless it is to go down to the Paragon theatre and see if there's any chance of running down a guy who bought this ticket. I tapped his chest, where the wallet was in the inner pocket of his coat."

"There's about as much chance of doing that," he added, "as of finding a needle in a haystack. But still a chance," Jimmy persisted.

"Well, I'm not developing any leads, no matter how much I try. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police. I am going to get in touch with the local police."

"The government has now entered the fur trade. The offering at the recent sale was less than $1,000,000 in value. The government has nothing to offer the trapper. The trapper is a man of few words, few qualifications, etc. It is a simple, direct, and unadorned statement. The government has nothing to offer the trapper.
